A wide-angle photograph of a large industrial complex, possibly a steel mill or refinery. The scene is dominated by a complex network of dark, metallic pipes and structural steel frameworks. Several tall, cylindrical smokestacks or chimneys rise from the facility. In the foreground, a large, light-colored building with a flat roof and numerous windows is visible. The background shows a hazy, mountainous landscape under a cloudy sky. The overall impression is one of a massive, active industrial operation.
